Cover Story:

Rick McNelly's little black jewel 1960 Falcon four-door was his grandparents' last car. "Florence", named for Rick's grandmother, was bought by his grandfather C. L. McNelly of Anoka, Minn. in 1965, and he drove her almost until his passing in 1976 at the age of 92. Florence was driven by various grandchildren and as a "beater" car in her later years until she was stored in a corn crib on a family farm in Iowa around 1990.

Rick rescued her in 1993 and trailered her to Rockford, Ill., where she has been lovingly and completely restored under Rick's watchful eye by Rumore Brothers' Garage. Although the garage specializes in Ford restorations, this was their only Falcon in over 25 years, and what a super job they did! Since that time, Florence has been Rick's daily driver.

Hot Cars

It's becoming more difficult and expensive to keep air conditioners running

Staying cool in your car this summer may be harder and more costly than ever.

First of, if the air conditioning system in your car needs work, your body temperature may shoot up when the mechanic hands you the repair bill.

The price of chlorofluorocarbon-12 or R-12, a coolant whose trademarked name is Freon, has risen steadily over the past few years because of a decision in the mid-1980s by more than 150 countries to phase out use of Freon. (Most scientists believe that it reduces the Earth's ozone layer.) As part of that inter-national agreement, production of R-12 ended in this country in December 1996. Imports also have been banned.

A substitute coolant, known as R-134a is being phased in.

A spot check of several local repair shops and auto dealers shows that consumers are paying from $29 to $40 a pound for Freon. A few short years ago, the price was 99 cents a pound.

If you have a faulty air conditioning system, you now have three choices. From cheapest to most expensive, they are:

- Doing without a functioning air conditioner and sweating it out. This is free.
- Recharging an air conditioner and replacing the Freon. This costs from $100 to $150, according to the local repair shops. However, sometimes additional parts (such as a compressor) are needed to restart a system. If this is the case, the price can rise to more than $700, they say.
- Retrofitting a car's air conditioning system to use R-134a. This may cost from $100 to $800, depending on the car's make and model.

Most cars built before 1994 use R-12. All cars built after 1994 use R-134a.

In a move designed to do an end run around the retrofit option, about a dozen products have come out on the market billed as direct replacement refrigerants. The idea is all that you have to replace is the refrigerant and a few parts, such as fittings, to convert your car's air conditioner.

The only problem is that automakers and other car parts manufacturers have not approved these substitutes. In fact, the Mobile Air Conditioning Society, an industry association of air conditioning parts and refrigerant manufacturers, reports that Chrysler, Ford and General Motors have issued service bulletins that use of nonapproved refrigerants can cause safety, durability and performance problems.

The Environmental Protection Agency also is evaluating substitute coolants. The federal agency considers only the potential effects on human health, safety and the environment in determining whether it deems a product acceptable. The government does not evaluate these refrigerants for performance or durability.

Products approved by the EPA include FRIGC (pronounced FRIJ-ik), made by Intermagnetics General; Freezone, made by Freezone; and Ikon-12, made by the Ikon Corp.

The EPA also has banned the use of some refrigerants on the market because they have been found to be unsafe. Made mostly of propane, banned coolants include: OZ-12 and HC-12a, both made by OZ Technology, R176 made by Arctic Chill, and R-405A made by Greencool. Technicians who install banned refrigerants in a car's air conditioning system are subject to a $25,000 fine and up to five years in prison.

Several other products are still being evaluated by the EPA for safety. These include: McCool, Autofrost-Chill-It and GHSH, three products made by People's Welding and Hot Shot-Kar Kool made by ICOR.

Eliminating Clutch Pedal Squeak

One source of clutch pedal squeak is eliminated when you make sure that you have the nylon insulator, C 1 DZ-7A630-A, between the upper extension of the clutch pedal and its assist spring forward hook. This part is illustrated as "insert" in Figure 6 on page 5-11 of the 1965 Falcon-Comet-Mustang shop manual, and is available from Ford dealers for about $1.25, usually as a special-order item. By the time a car is 20 years old, the insulator has probably broken and fallen out, and the inside of the spring hook then wears directly against the metal of the clutch pedal extension.

Cleaning Rusty Battery Holders

Rusty battery holders are a hard problem to solve, but a product that is used for aircraft battery boxes is a better solution. Remove and clean your battery holder. Wire brush or use rust remover solution. Thoroughly dry and apply zinc chromate primer. The primer can be baked dry in about one hour in a 150° oven. Next, apply Randolph (344) Acid Proof Black Paint with a brush. (This paint can be purchased or ordered from most airplane supply dealers, about $6/qt.) Brush thin, this is very thick paint. Bake in oven for one hour at 150°. This dries and flows out the paint really nice. Otherwise about 48 hours are required to air dry.

Feature Falcon

It Was Mechanically Good. But Not Pretty Until...

When owners Skip Guenter and his girlfriend Maureen "Mo" Goerend of Austin, Texas, bought their Springtime Yellow '65 Futura V8 in 1992, it was a good running modified car still wearing its original faded paint and chrome. "We put some air-shocks on it so the tires wouldn't rub and did a bit of brake work," said Skip. "We drove it evenings and weekends and planned to paint it when we could afford it, some time before the Falcon Nationals in '94. Well, that was the plan until the car was rear-ended on Halloween in '93 while stopped in a left turn lane. It took until July of '94 to settle with the guy's insurance company, because to them it was just some old car that got damage ... Anyway that's a whole other story in itself."

"Our goal was now to attend the FCA Nationals in July of 1995. We started pulling it apart and locating parts in August '94." With this much lead time, "this is going to be easy" right!!!" On April first, "we finally hauled it to G.J. (Jim) Boies of Classic Car Care along with spare fenders, trim, grills, hoods, etc. and were getting just a bit concerned about making the '95 Nationals. At Jim's, the car was stripped, straightened, sanded, painted, new rubber installed everywhere, a new gas tank, upholstery and carpet. Meanwhile, back at the ranch, we were busy stripping the engine down, scrubbing, sanding bead blasting, painting, polishing, and running up some pretty good bills at the performance shop." Needless to say, it required everyone to work right up to the night before the National Meet.

Accepting the class winner award at the banquet made all of their efforts seem worthwhile. In their first outing, Skip and Mo achieved their goal of attending the FCA Nationals with their awesome modified Falcon. Since then, they have won numerous awards including the Falcon of the Year Award in the Capitol City's chapter and second place in their class at the 1996 National Show. These achievements are a testament to their determination and ability to modify an old car and gain recognition from their peers in a very competitive hobby.

Their future plans include a suspension upgrade and possibly disk brakes as they continue to improve their Falcon's appearance and performance characteristics.

You can read a much more detailed account of the effort required to achieve their dream by accessing the Falcon home pages on the World Wide Web in an article published on the internet.

Chapter News

The soon to be formed Louisville Chapter had it's first meeting April 19. We enjoyed sharing Falcon stories for about an hour. Lots of great information was passed around. Richard Franklin drove his pretty two tone blue '63 two door.

The Erie Canal Chapter had a fun "Luck of the Irish" gathering at the home of Rudy and Suzi Samuel in March. Potluck meal meetings were held at John and Barb Yochums in April and in May at the home of Joe and Charmaine Tatti.

In March a wonderful trip to the Grass Valley / Auburn Area, "Tour of the Giants" was enjoyed by many of the members of the River City Chapter. It was a well planned trip by Curt Smith. April's event was a tour of one of the largest antique truck museums in the USA! In May we had a "Meet in the Middle" regional planning meeting at Vasquez Deli in Vacaville. Our seventh Annual Pacific Regional Meet is planned for June 20 & 21, 1997 at the Sheraton Hotel, Rancho Cordovan, Cal.

Approximately 36 members and guests of the Carolina's Chapter attended the Lee Holmans Shop tour in March. Lots of good looking Falcons were proudly driven to this event. Our membership continues to grow with four new Falcon enthusiasts!

Mile High Chapter enjoyed a potluck dinner at its April Meeting at Phil Long Ford. Our chapter is 61 families strong. Lots of fun activities are planned for the rest of '97. We continue to work on the '98 National Meet to be held in Breckenridge, Co., a beautified old mining/ski town. Start planning your vacation and "Rush to the Rockies", July 16, 17, 18, 1998 in Colorado.

The Founder's Chapter "All-car-get-together" was a great meet ! There were 101 cars and trucks with 14 Falcons present. Two of those Falcons were from Texas. Orville and Joy Reynolds won the long distance award coming from Cookville, Texas. Our ladies are looking forward to an arts and crafts weekend in Northwest Arkansas at our Falcon meet.

Thanks

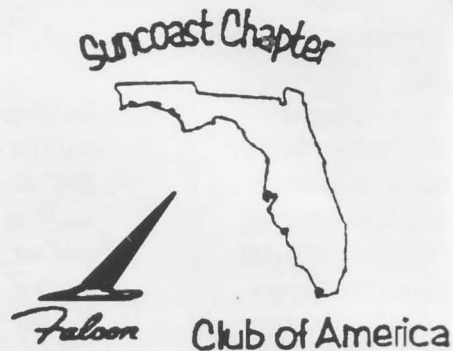

From the "go-pher," I really appreciate the great turnout for our Music City Regional Meet. Thanks to JC for holding off the rain. Thanks to the 18 chapters represented; to the 20 states represented; to our neighbors to the North (Canada). Thanks to the companies, chapters, and individuals that sponsored us; to the individuals who helped clean and prepare swap spaces, set up parking, manage hospitality and registration and all the little (and not so little) things it takes to make a meet successful. Thanks to our FCA President for attending.

It would be impossible to mention everybody and everything, and I wouldn't want to leave anyone out, so I won't attempt that. However, I gotta mention Chuck and Carolyn. Man, oh man, what can I say!!! Thanks a million for the help and guidance and for being a director to us even though we no longer belong to your region. Many of us hope things will change and we will be back in the fold. Thanks for the letters and calls I have received; sure is gratifying. A big thanks to the ones who have already registered for next year, the ones who have given sponsorship, the ones who have pledged sponsorship and last, but certainly not least, thanks to everyone in our chapter for a job well done.

I really mean it ... THANKS!!
